PRESS RELEASE

January 2016

The standing stones of Avebury provide the inspiration for the AVA dining table by Tom Faulkner.

The AVA dining table is one of Tom's first pieces of furniture to be made in bronze. The rich, luxurious metal is given a simple, graphic outline, made of two tetrahedrons, one balanced on top of the other. A subtle twist gives the base the strength to carry a marble top, above its slender waist.

'I wanted to keep the design strong and minimal. The silhouette is sharp, minimal, and crisp – the beauty of the piece flows from its own geometry. It is wonderful to be using bronze and marble, these two ancient materials, in such a contemporary way.'

Tom Faulkner.
